Wall cladding installation – that also pleases the EHO

When Peter Bayliss, Executive Chef at the prestigious Holiday Inn in Leicester, was looking for new hygienic wall cladding to replace the existing ceramic tiles in the hotel kitchen, his Environmental Health Officer pointed him in the direction of Altro Whiterock.

“We worked closely with the EHO in the preparation of plans and recommendations for the improvements we were making to the kitchens. The problem with the ceramic tiles we had before was that the grouting joints needed renewing every three to four years in order to maintain hygiene standards. This is a costly and time-consuming business that we wanted to avoid.”

This is a busy kitchen so the added inconvenience of tiles becoming cracked and having to be replaced and the fact that we often had trouble getting the right size, thickness and shade of tiles made the situation worse for us. Altro Whiterock proved to be the ideal solution and in two years I can honestly say we’ve had no problems. Altro Whiterock is far more durable than we anticipated and beats ceramic tiles for durability. Cleaning is easy too and we have eliminated the problem of older grouting joints absorbing dirt.”
